

Baby Dudes

Sharing is Caring

J, K & S Marashli

Sharing is Caring

Written By Salaam Marashli

Illustrated By Jameel Marashli

Characters In This Story

Ting

Ginji

Rachel

Ginji and Ting were playing with their building blocks. Ting was building a great spaceship. Ginji was building a castle.

Both creations were nearly complete.

Suddenly,
they both reached for the same block. “Hey! I was going to use that one Ting,” Ginji said angrily.

“It is an important piece for my spaceship though, so I need it,” Ting replied.

The babies started to yell at each other and they tugged and pulled at the block. Ting swung around and this made Ginji fall straight into her spaceship.

BANG!!

“Hey that was on purpose!” Ginji cried, as he rubbed his head. “My spaceship! You RUINED my spaceship,” Ting responded.

Both of the babies were so upset. Rachel heard the crying and came to investigate. “What happened? Why are you both crying?” She asked.

“Ginji would not let me use the block and then broke my spaceship,” Ting cried.
“NO! She pushed me into her castle on purpose,” Ginji said through his tears.

“Ginji would never destroy your spaceship Ting, and Ting would never hurt you on purpose Ginji,” Rachel said reassuringly.

“If there is only one block, why don’t you share it and work together?” Rachel suggested.

“I guess we both got so caught up in the block, we didn’t realise we were hurting each other. I’m sorry I made you fall over,” Ting said beginning to smile. “I’m sorry for breaking your spaceship,” Ginji replied smiling back at Ting. “I guess we can make a space castle?”

After a while the babies were able to finish their new space castle.

Working together and sharing what they had.

The End